"Many thanks to your team on the recovery of the RAID-5 data. This was crucial to our client's defense. As you know we first tried a larger national service who was not successful."

— Robert Pallasch, ACT Litigation Services

"Not only are you folks technical wizards, but your customer service was compassionate, informative, and... just perfect!"

— Dr. Susan Berk, Encino, California

Why Should You Partner with

MICROCOM?
WORLDWIDE DATA RECOVERY

Saving data is our game . . .

It's our only game. Every day we recover computer data for people under considerable duress! We are expert and seasoned by years of experience and computer industry innovation as well as emergency service. Our technological forté is the hard disk drive and generally any data storage hardware. Seemingly lost files that can no longer be accessed — are the target of our enduring enterprise. Whether deleted, damaged, reformatted or whatever, we will help your client get that missing data back!

Founded in 1989...

we've acquired an enviable reputation among data recovery specialists. Having received many requests over the years to render a "second opinion", each of our recovery engineers are repeat victors in claiming data for a client after one of our well-known competitors had previously declared the same data as unrecoverable.

Your client's information
is safe.

Our well-honed in-house security system makes sure of it. Every last detail of the services we provide is accomplished under one roof, so we absolutely control every aspect of access. This ensures that client data is always secure, totally confidential, in a word — safe.

See MicroCom's Privacy Policy:

We recognize well the extent to which electronic information has evolved to become integral. Every day MicroCom Worldwide Data Recovery commits itself in a way that's earnest and, we hope, unflinching in extending the same courtesy and level of value to every person and every entity.

Are you ready?

Become a DRP Member!

The most profitable members of MicroCom's DRP program are already accomplished data recovery specialists in their own right, actively marketing their service and using software applications to deal with customer cases of data loss where hard disk drives are electronically operable, and not seriously failing mechanically. So whether your company is just starting — or already staffed with seasoned pros, you can begin ramping up your own data recovery enterprise today.

MicroCom facilities include all the disk drive hardware instrumentation and cleanroom environment requisite for safe, HDA remediation, all operated by data recovery engineers with advanced expertise. Subcontractors are never employed by MicroCom, and this enables the highest security for your client's data. Dedicated only to data recovery and providing world-class, end-to-end support since 1989, we have no other business interest to cloud our vision.

MicroCom Worldwide Data Recovery

can be your long-term partner in successfully expanding your data recovery service offerings — from a nascent startup, all the way through the level where you can confidently offer recovery service on complex RAID server subsystems, where the reward payouts tend to be substantial.

MicroCom experience spans nearly the entire history of microcomputer ("Winchester") hard drives. Staying on top of the rapid technological evolution from the earliest times 20 years ago, we've created an enviable reputation within the industry. No matter where you go, you will not find a higher level of expertise or client attention to partner up with or to stake your own service reputation on . . . Call us today —
